Three Faithful Friends

Undersecretary of the Treamery, W. Randelph Bucpass, warms spendoes that the prevailing decline in savings by Americans presents an inflationary

He says, "A revival of theift in this country is respectly seeded. . Remarks create in the United States. sive evidence that for its long-term growth the country mode a higher rate of saving. . We need to develop theift and encourage it . . "

Personal servings in 1865 were only 63% of disposable personal income as companed with 7.2% for the pre-coling five years, while it is estimated that around 8% is needed for the dynamic growth of the continuous. And servings in 1885 had for about of the serious mode. Minimized evidence electly points to the fact that the progress of any notion is measured by the assumption

Without savings there would be no capital to key the machines to employ the help to produce the goods to anothin 2 growing, prosperous economy.

And there are personal reasons everyone should not money, for one never knows just when one will need! Benjamin Pranklin, America's found pioneer in theil, said, "THERE ARE THERE PARTEFUL PRIENDS— an OLD WEFE, an OLD DOG, and READY MONEY."

A fiziend in need is a friend indeed, and a little reely money, when in a pinch, is a life sever.

There's a lot of personal auticinction in having some or have it near at hand when opportunity knocks.

Were Box Promblin alive today, he might well include your bank among other faithful faitable for providing you with the security and service to facilitate the saving of money. Through saving we strongthen the nations seemeny and build our personal fortunes.
